ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The papers in this volume arose in various ways from a working conference on predication and the history of philosophy and science sponsored by Pitzer College in 1981. The conference, in which all of the authors participated, was funded by grants from the Haines Foundation and Pitzer College, and the preparation of the manuscripts of this volume, by a grant from the Pitzer College Research and Development Committee.

We are greatly indebted to the following people for their hospitality, encouragement, and help: Frank Ellsworth, Karin Ellsworth, Ronald and Janet Macaulay, Donald Brenneis and Wynne Furth, Amy Bogen, Morton O. Beckner, Jay Atlas, Charles Young, Richard McKirhan, Beverly Scales, Theresa Hidalgo, Patsy Sampson, Nicholas J. Sandro, Enzo Biscardi, Ellen Chase, Charles Zetterberg, and a number of Pitzer College students including Eileen Fagan, Kiamara Ludwig, Barbara Kohlenberg, Valery Krieger, Peter Forrester, Neepta Chowdury, and the staff of the Grove House. And, Kathy Dahlgren and Jeane Pease, the typing machine.
