

Changing Perspectives on the Social Sciences in Ghana

Samuel Agyei-Mensah • Joseph Atsu Ayee
Abena D. Oduro
Editors

Changing Perspectives on the Social Sciences in Ghana

Springer

Editors

Samuel Agyei-Mensah
Department of Geography and Resource Development
University of Ghana
Legon
Ghana

Abena D. Oduro
Department of Economics
University of Ghana
Legon
Ghana

Joseph Atsu Ayee
MountCrest University College
Accra
Ghana

ISBN 978-94-017-8714-7                      ISBN 978-94-017-8715-4 (eBook)
DOI 10.1007/978-94-017-8715-4
Springer Dordrecht Heidelberg New York London

Library of Congress Control Number: 2014937328

© Springer Science+Business Media Dordrecht 2014

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are reserved by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed. Exempted from this legal reservation are brief excerpts in connection with reviews or scholarly analysis or material supplied specifically for the purpose of being entered and executed on a computer system, for exclusive use by the purchaser of the work. Duplication of this publication or parts thereof is permitted only under the provisions of the Copyright Law of the Publisher's location, in its current version, and permission for use must always be obtained from Springer. Permissions for use may be obtained through RightsLink at the Copyright Clearance Center. Violations are liable to prosecution under the respective Copyright Law.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

While the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication, neither the authors nor the editors nor the publisher can accept any legal responsibility for any errors or omissions that may be made. The publisher makes no warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein.

Printed on acid-free paper

Springer is part of Springer Science+Business Media (www.springer.com)

Foreword

Even though Africa remains the poorest region of the world, there is every indication that the last three decades have seen tremendous change in societal development. The change is reflected in how African societies are governed and how economic activities are organised. It is now a lot more difficult to talk about ‘traditional African societies’ even if large parts of behaviour and lifestyle cannot always be described as modern. A number of key attributes of traditional societies, including chieftaincy, extended family relationships, land tenure arrangements and the organisation of markets, are generally seen differently. It was always inevitable that there would be tensions between the traditional and the modern. Ghana has a unique history. Most of the changes that have occurred in Africa, such as the attainment of independence in the region, the pursuit of comprehensive socio-economic reforms in the 1980s and finally, the trailblazer role in democratic reforms and political transitions in the last two decades, can be observed in Ghana more than anywhere else. It is therefore appropriate that Ghanaian social scientists should be interested in how the changes have been studied and document these.

The changes in the behaviour of society in Ghana and in Africa have been fuelled by both internal dynamics, including population growth and education, and also by external influences, including globalisation. While there have been many studies of these dynamics and how they have shaped African societies in the last three decades, there has been relatively little documentation of how the studies were motivated, and also how ideas for those studies were shaped and influenced by the internal and external dynamics. This book is intended to fill that gap.

There is a lot more information today about African societies, as a result of the fact that it is a lot easier to conduct large household and community studies. It is also more common for different social scientists to use the same research instruments in the same community for different purposes. For instance, surveys are conducted by university-based researchers, students, non-governmental organisations and several other institutions on a regular basis, thus generating data that could be used for a variety of research purposes. This leads to many more solid analytical works that could lead to generalizable conclusions for policy and other purposes. That is what makes a number of the disciplines represented in this book suggest that their relevance to policy is growing.

One of the most remarkable revolutions in the social sciences around the world has been in the development of analytical tools, largely aided by new technologies that allow researchers to do a lot more with data and other information. The use of quantitative methods in different social sciences has grown astronomically, even if this has not always been properly done. The search for ways in which researchers can combine qualitative and quantitative methods proceeds unabated. In the search for improved analytical methods one obvious observation is that many social science disciplines are borrowing from one another. The more dynamic disciplines have been those willing to borrow and adapt tools from other disciplines in order to advance their own discipline. The result is greater inter-disciplinarity and transdisciplinarity in social science research. This is a growing phenomenon around the world and often the outcome of clear thought within the disciplines as presented at conferences. However, inter- and trans- disciplinary borrowing has been less coordinated and organised in Africa. There is therefore room for more effective coordination of research tool development and research analyses to take place among African social science researchers, especially at universities. This book is clear evidence of Ghanaian social scientists wanting to share ideas on how they have done their work over the years. The next stage is to document how they work together.

This book is a bold initiative to show advances in the social sciences in Ghana, especially at the University of Ghana. It represents a new spirit of trying to change the discourse on social science teaching and research in the country by documenting themes that dominate discussions, teaching and research. Questions about the relevance of particular disciplines and how they impact Ghanaian society are discussed. The historical development of the disciplines clearly dominates the presentations. This is a significant first step in having a solid discussion on the approaches and processes that would enable the social sciences in Ghana to become a significant part of the global discourse on the evolution of the social sciences.

Ernest Aryeetey
Vice Chancellor, University of Ghana
Board Chair, Partnership for African Social and Governance Research

Acknowledgement

We began this book a couple of years ago motivated by our shared commitment to assemble a volume that would provide a chronological narrative of the scholarship on the Social Sciences in Ghana. The actual write up of the chapters began in 2010. Like all edited volumes, there were some challenges. However, they did not affect our determination and commitment to come out with the book. We would like to thank the authors for the wonderful support and cooperation in making the book a reality. We also would like to acknowledge the helpful comments from the anonymous reviewers at both the proposal and manuscript writing stages.

We appreciate the wonderful work by everyone at Springer involved with the project, especially, Evelien Bakker and Bernadette Deelen. Finally, we thank Ernest Aryeetey, Vice Chancellor, University of Ghana for providing the foreword.

Samuel Agyei-Mensah
Joseph Atsu Ayee
Abena D. Oduro

Contents

1 Introduction .....	1
Joseph R. A. Ayee, Samuel Agyei-Mensah and Abena D. Oduro
2 Trends in the Development of Archaeology and Heritage Studies in Ghana .....	11
James Anquandah
3 Bridging the Ivory Tower Professional History, Scholarship, and Public Engagement in Ghana .....	33
Daniel E.K. Baku, Nana Yaw B. Sapon and Cyrelene Amoah-Boampong
4 Change and Continuity in the Practice and Development of Geography in Ghana .....	51
Samuel Agyei-Mensah, Joseph A. Yaro and Joseph Mensah
5 Psychology in Ghana: A Review of Research and Practice .....	75
Ama de-Graft Aikins, Angela L. Ofori-Atta, Adote Anum and Vivian A. Dzokoto
6 The Development of Sociology and Anthropology in Ghana and Future Trends .....	95
Akosua Darkwah, Steve Tonah and Max Assimeng
7 Social Work Practice in Ghana: Changing Dynamics, Challenges and Opportunities .....	113
Michael Baffoe and Mavis Dako-Gyeke
8 The Study and Practice of Economics in Ghana .....	135
L. Boakye-Yiadom, William Baah-Boateng and Abena D. Oduro
9 The Vicissitudes of Political Science in Ghana .....	159
Joseph R. A. Ayee and Maame A. A. Gyekye-Jandoh

10 Changing Perspectives in the Didactics of International Affairs in Ghana .....	193
Linda Darkwa and Philip Attuquayefio
11 From Library and Archival Studies to Information Studies: A Convergence .....	209
H. Akussah and A. A. Alemna
12 Critically “Trending” Approaches to Communication Theory and Methods of Inquiry in Ghana .....	221
Kwasi Ansu-Kyeremeh
13 African Studies: Evolution, Challenges, And Prospects .....	239
Brigid M. Sackey
14 Evolution and Development of Development Studies in Ghana .....	263
Philip Duku Osei
15 Women’s and Gender Studies in Ghana .....	285
Abena Animwaa Yeboah, Akosua Adomako Ampofo and Maame Kyerewaa Brobbey
16 Changing Trends in Adult and Continuing Education: The Ghanaian Experience .....	313
Yaw Oheneba-Sakyi, Olivia Adwoa Tiwaah Frimpong Kwapong, Samuel Kofi Badu-Nyarko and Michael Ayithey Tagoe
17 Conclusion .....	335
Joseph R. A. Ayee, Samuel Agyei-Mensah and Abena D. Oduro
Index .....	337

Contributors

Akosua Adomako Ampofo Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Samuel Agyei-Mensah Department of Geography and Resource Development, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Ama de-Graft Aikins Regional Institute for Population Studies (RIPS), University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

H. Akussah Department of Information Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

A. A. Alemna Department of Information Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Cyrelene Amoah-Boampong Department of History, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Abena Animwaa Yeboah Department of Communications Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

James Anquandah Department of Archaeology, University of Ghana, Legon, Accra, Ghana

Kwasi Ansu-Kyeremeh School of Communication Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Adote Anum Department of Psychology, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Max Assimeng Department of Sociology, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Philip Attuquayefio Legon Centre for International Affairs and Diplomacy, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Joseph R. A. Ayee MountCrest University College, Accra, Ghana

William Baah-Boateng Department of Economics, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Samuel Kofi Badu-Nyarko Institute of Continuing and Distance Education, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Michael Baffoe Faculty of Social Work, University of Manitoba, Winnipeg, Canada

Daniel E.K. Baku Department of History, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

L. Boakye-Yiadom Department of Economics, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Mavis Dako-Gyeke Department of Social Work, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Linda Darkwa Legon Centre for International Affairs and Diplomacy, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Akosua Darkwah Department of Sociology, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Vivian A. Dzokoto Virginia Commonwealth University, Virginia, USA

Maame A. A. Gyekye-Jandoh Department of Political Science, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Olivia Adwoa Tiwaah Frimpong Kwapong Institute of Continuing and Distance Education, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Maame Kyerewaa Brobbey Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Joseph Mensah Department of Geography, York University, Toronto, Canada

Abena D. Oduro Department of Economics, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Angela L. Ofori-Atta Department of Psychiatry, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Yaw Oheneba-Sakyi Institute of Continuing and Distance Education, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Philip Duku Osei Institute of Social and Economic Studies, University of the West Indies, Mona, Jamaica

Brigid M. Sackey Formerly of the Institute of African Studies, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Nana Yaw B. Sapong Department of History, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Michael Ayitsey Tagoe Institute of Continuing and Distance Education, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Steve Tonah Department of Sociology, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana

Joseph A. Yaro Department of Geography and Resource Development, University of Ghana, Legon, Ghana