

Palgrave Studies in Cybercrime
and Cybersecurity

Series Editors

Marie-Helen Maras
John Jay College of Criminal Justice CUN
New York, USA

Thomas J. Holt
Michigan State University
East Lansing, Michigan, USA

This book series addresses the urgent need to advance knowledge in the fields of cybercrime and cybersecurity. Because the exponential expansion of computer technologies and use of the Internet have greatly increased the access by criminals to people, institutions, and businesses around the globe, the series will be international in scope. It provides a home for cutting-edge long-form research. Further, the series seeks to spur conversation about how traditional criminological theories apply to the online environment. The series welcomes contributions from early career researchers as well as established scholars on a range of topics in the cybercrime and cybersecurity fields.

More information about this series at <http://www.springer.com/series/14637>

Anastasia Powell • Nicola Henry

Sexual Violence in a Digital Age

palgrave
macmillan

Anastasia Powell
Justice and Legal Studies
RMIT University
Melbourne, Victoria, Australia

Nicola Henry
Centre for Global Research
RMIT University
Melbourne, Victoria, Australia

Palgrave Studies in Cybercrime and Cybersecurity
ISBN 978-1-137-58046-7 ISBN 978-1-137-58047-4 (eBook)
DOI 10.1057/978-1-137-58047-4

Library of Congress Control Number: 2017934717

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2017

The author(s) has/have asserted their right(s) to be identified as the author(s) of this work in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988.

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover illustration: deomis, Kutuev Rail, deomister@gmail.com

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by Springer Nature
The registered company is Macmillan Publishers Ltd.

The registered company address is: The Campus, 4 Crinan Street, London, N1 9XW, United Kingdom

Acknowledgements

We are grateful to many people for their support and assistance throughout the development of this book and the research upon which it is based.

The research underpinning this book was funded by an Australian Research Council (ARC)-funded Discovery Project (DP130103094) titled Technology facilitated sexual violence and harassment: violence against women in cyberspace and the implications for legislative and policy reform. The views expressed here are ours and not those of the funding agency or the Australian government. We are extremely grateful to have had funding support from the ARC for this research and also the support of our institutions, RMIT University and previously La Trobe University, who have allowed us the time and resources to complete this work. In particular, we thank the anonymous reviewers of our original ARC project proposal, who provided astute feedback and advice and who foresaw the importance of this issue in 2012 before technology-facilitated sexual violence became a feature of almost daily local and global news. We are also very grateful to our peers, colleagues and reviewers who have variously provided advice and guidance on various aspects of our research over the past few years.

This book represents the culmination of both our collaborative and individual work over the past eight years, with early developmental work featured in Anastasia's first book, Sex, Power and Consent: Youth Culture and the Unwritten Rules (2010, Cambridge University Press). Aspects of our research have also previously been published in the scholarly articles 'Embodied harms: gender, shame, and technology-facilitated sexual violence' (2015, Violence Against Women); 'Policing technology-facilitated sexual violence' (2016, Policing & Society); 'Sexual violence in the digital age: the scope and limits of criminal law' (2016, Law & Society); 'Technology-facilitated sexual violence: a literature review of empirical research' (2016, Trauma, Violence, and Abuse), 'Technology-facilitated sexual violence victimization: results from an online survey of Australian adults' (2016, Journal of Interpersonal Violence), as well as book chapters 'The dark side of the virtual world: towards a digital sexual ethics' (2014, Preventing sexual violence) and 'Seeking informal justice online' (2015, Rape justice). We thank the editors of these journals, and our anonymous peer reviewers in particular, for their feedback and support of our research. This book is far more than a collection of our various scholarly articles and chapters; here we present for the first time our in-depth empirical investigations interwoven with an extended conceptual development of technology-facilitated sexual violence. As such, this book reflects both a substantial addition to, and refinement of, our previous works in this field.

We express our sincere gratitude to the editorial team at Palgrave Macmillan (Basingstoke, UK), in particular, Julia Willan, Harriet Barker, Dominic Walker and Stephanie Carey, who have been constant sources of enthusiasm for this book throughout its journey from concept to proposal to publication. We are grateful for the inclusion of sexual- and gender-based violence as a core priority issue within Palgrave's publishing schedule.

Thanks also to our manuscript editor Helena Bond, whose expertise and astute advice have proven so valuable in the final stages of production of this book. It is through Helena's careful attention to detail and eye for clarity that the core arguments of this book have been able to shine through. We also thank Rachel King, Rachel Loney-Howes and Brent Collett for their wonderful research assistance work. In particular, thanks to Brent for his close and careful reading of many chapters of this book.

Finally, we both thank our partners, families and friends for their love, support and encouragement.

Anastasia: I am indebted to many mentors and colleagues, as well as family and friends, who have each contributed in varying ways to my scholarship and my feminism. Thanks to my family for the experiences that have made me the person that I am, and that have motivated me to pursue justice and social change to address violence and abuse in this world. I thank my sisters, Desiree and Kathleen, for their friendship and emotional support over many years and for understanding my obsession with my work. Thanks to many feminist friends, colleagues and mentors in Criminology and elsewhere, in particular to Olivia, Ruth, Larissa, Nicola, Asher, Kay, Peta, Lisa, Georgina, Marg, Marietta, Una, Michele, Fiona, Kerry and Liz. I am also deeply grateful to my male mentors, colleagues, friends and family—Adam, David, Murray, Stuart, Greg, Rob, Hugh and Matthew—who have supported and encouraged me and inspired me to think big! Most of all I wish to express my deep and heartfelt gratitude to Matthew and Alexander. Thank you for standing by me and believing in me. To Alexander, my bright, bubbly and funny six-year-old boy—you have such free expression, delight in the world around you and feel compassionately for others—I look forward to seeing the grown-up person you become.

Nicola: I express my heartfelt thanks first and foremost to my family—to Mum, Dad, Justine, Emma, Mike, Matt, Emily, Isabel, Maya, Esther, Owen, Sylvie, Claire and Ava, for your love, good humour and support. I thank my extended family members—my aunts, uncles, cousins, and Brent's family (especially Pauline)—for loving me just the way I am and for being generous, caring and supportive. I thank my treasured lifelong school friends, Harriet, Rachel, Lea, Kirstie, Megan and Duncan, for the joyous times we continue to have together. I also express my deep gratitude to my wonderful academic friends and colleagues, in particular to Nesam, Catherine, Tarryn, Kirsty, Raul, Sue, Sanja, Anne-Maree, Brooke, Nick, Michael, Asher, Peta, Katie, Mark, Senem, Melinda and Xianbi. I am also extremely indebted to Angelica—whose insight, wisdom and care has changed my life. And a huge thanks to Anastasia, who has been wonderful to work with over the years and has been such an inspirational mentor, friend and colleague. Finally, the two people I thank most of all are Brent and Frederick. First, to Brent—for being the most supportive, caring and grounded person I know. As my lovely Auntie Annette remarked, 'Wouldn't it be nice if they were all like Brent?' And second, I thank the stars for my darling little 6-year-old,

viii Acknowledgements

Frederick, who follows in the footsteps of his wondrous father in being the most delightful and sweetest of creatures, who lights up my world and who is already (I'm proud to say) a passionate champion of social justice, equality and animal and environmental rights.

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	Part I Power	21
2	Sexual Violence: A Feminist Criminological Analysis	23
3	Conceptualising Technosocial Sexual Harms	49
	Part II Violence	77
4	Rape Culture Unveiled	79
5	Beyond ‘Revenge Pornography’	117
6	Online Misogyny, Harassment and Hate Crimes	153
	Part III Justice	195

7	The Potentials and Limitations of Law	197
8	Towards Equal Digital Citizenship	237
9	Digital Justice and Feminist Activism	271
10	Conclusion: Reflections and Future Research	299
	Index	311

List of Tables

Table 4.1	Lifetime prevalence of technology-enabled sexual aggression towards adult women—Australia and UK (2015 figures)	85
Table 5.1	Lifetime prevalence of image-based sexual abuse of adult women— Australia and UK (2015 figures)	134
Table 6.1	Lifetime prevalence of sexual, gender and sexuality-based harassment of adult women—Australia and UK (2015 figures)	158
Table 8.1	Digital harassment: victim relationship to perpetrator	249