

Part V

Compatible Almost Complex Structures

The fact that any symplectic manifold possesses almost complex structures, and even so in a compatible sense, establishes a link from symplectic geometry to complex geometry, and is the point of departure for the modern technique of counting pseudo-holomorphic curves, as first proposed by Gromov [49].